

CROWDS ATTEND TWO-DAY COURSE

Collinsville Was the Mecca for County Farmers Monday

GROUND WELL COVERED

Every Phase of Agriculture Covered in Addresses by Farming Experts

Special to The World. COLLINSVILLE, Feb. 20.—The two day's agriculture course conducted by Professor P. G. Holden, head of the extension department of the International Harvester company, opened at the Liberty theater today with a bang. The first meeting was held by prominent business men to have been one of the most successful agricultural gatherings ever held in this section of Tulsa county.

Holden, who has been named the "Bully Sunday" of agriculture is known the world over. He is one of the greatest of agriculture experts. He holds two of the first time, according to Holden, that he has ever held two meetings in the same county.

Condensed Short Course.

His meetings are just what they are called, condensed short courses of agriculture. Every phase of practical farm life is discussed from a local viewpoint. With him Holden has two able assistants, Miss Zella Wigent, domestic science and poultry expert. She discusses poultry problems in the general meetings and talks privately with the women. R. R. Robertson, the orchard expert, is one of the big attractions of the courses. Robertson has made a specialty of fruit growing. He owns a large orchard in Ohio which he personally supervises.

Three general meetings were held here today—one in the morning, one in the afternoon and one in the night. Several special meetings were held which were addressed by Miss Wigent and Robertson. The morning session over which J. O. Colburn presided opened with an address of welcome by George M. Janaway, president of the chamber of commerce. Charles B. Peters, president of the Tulsa Chamber of Commerce, also made a short talk. Holden gave a highly interesting lecture on soils—he calls it a "soil talk." He preceded this talk with several tricks and stunts with a rope.

Make Dairy Cow Pay.

P. E. Dodson was chairman of the afternoon session. Holden talked on "How to Make the Dairy Cow Pay." As he was speaking many of the local dairymen were busy taking notes. The professor gave many pointers on how to make a success of dairying. The morning meeting was attended by about a thousand people. At the afternoon session the Liberty theater was packed, the crowd being estimated at 1,500 persons.

During the morning Miss Wigent talked to the school children at the high school. She later gave a special lecture to high school agriculture students. In the afternoon she talked to a gathering of the women. Home economics, various home problems and poultry raising were all discussed at this meeting.

R. R. Robertson was the big attraction at the night meeting over which J. B. Wise of Vera, presided. Robertson gave a technical lecture on fruit growing. Holden was also on the program. Several reels of entertaining and educational movies were also shown.

The program Tuesday will be similar to today's program. At the night meeting Holden is to make a final lecture which will be accompanied by moving pictures. This is said to be one of his greatest talks. A banner crowd is expected at all sessions.

STOOD CUSSING TO PUT OUT FIRE

Merchant Nearly Disrobes Fat Lady in Fight With Flames

Special to The World. McALESTER, Feb. 20.—Jon Bell, dry goods merchant of McAlester, relates that the most embarrassing position he was ever placed in was when he was waiting on trade in the store one day. A lady came in wearing long skirts and a petticoat fully as long and in places somewhat longer.

Bell sniffed the air. There was an unmistakable odor of burning dry goods. Such odors always strike consternation to the heart of a merchant with thousands of dollars' worth of goods at stake. He looked all over the store for the burning garment and presently discovered smoke issuing from beneath the folds of the fat lady's skirt.

The merchant lost no time. He made a dive for the rather section of the lady's skirt. The lady, unaware of what was wrong, doubtless thought Bell was crazy and skidded away from him with a shriek. At the same time she administered a kick which Bell stated would have done credit to the venerable mule carted up to the store.

But Bell was determined. The fire must be extinguished. He dived in again without respect to persons or location. He says he kept pulling off undergarments until he had reached about four when he reached the seat of the flames. All the while the 300-pound female was displaying herself with doubly-greased hysteria.

After the flames were out and Bell stood on the burning deck he said he got the most profuse cursing he ever received in his life. He of course was very embarrassing to a man of his retiring temperament.

THE MERRY JOURNEYS OF MARY JANE

Mary Jane, said Jumbo, "if folks only knew how sweet and good this Mary Jane Syrup is, why everybody would eat it all the time."

Mary Jane Meets Jumbo—The Big Elephant

ONE day, the circus came to town. There were trained pigs, and clowns, and beautiful ladies riding in chariots, and a cage full of monkeys. But what Mary Jane liked best was the great big elephant, Jing Lin Ousanni. But everybody called him Jumbo.

Jumbo had a very wonderful nose. It was four feet long. And Jumbo could wrap it around a big man, and lift the man right up on his back. Jumbo could pick up a pin with his nose. And he put the end of it right into Uncle Jim's pocket and took out a lot of peanuts.

Mary Jane got to talking with Jumbo and he told her all about Africa and crocodiles, and tigers, and jungles where you get lost right away, just as soon as you stepped off the little path.

Mary Jane was so pleased to hear Jumbo that she opened up her lunch basket and brought out two great big slices of bread spread with delicious Mary Jane Syrup, that she had for when she would get hungry from watching the lions.

She gave one of them to Jumbo, and he took it right up, and curled his long nose around till he put the whole piece of bread in his mouth at once. "Mary Jane", said Jumbo, if folks only knew how sweet and good this Mary Jane Syrup is, why everybody in the world would eat it all the time." And Mary Jane said that's what she thought, but she didn't like to say so out loud for Mary Jane Syrup was named after her. And then she said "good-bye" to Jumbo, and drove home with her Uncle Jim in his Ford.
